Local officials invite tourists to 'look around'

BY TRACI BONNEY

Hancock County officials are urging people to "Look Around, Mississippi."

Representatives from Diamondhead, Stennis Space Center, Waveland Resort Inn, the City of Bay St. Louis and the county Chamber of Commerce plan to participate in a state-wide travel show next month in Jackson.

The show, an outgrowth of the "Look Around, Mississippi" program established by the Mississippi Economic Council to promote tourism, gives chambers of commerce and other city and county organizations an opportunity to promote their area to travel agents, tour arrangers and meeting planners, said Clarice Gustin, marketing director of the Diamondhead Property Owners Association.

The show, which will be held at the Fairgrounds Coliseum, will include information booths being used by counties across the state. Gustin said several thousand people are expected to attend the event.

"Not only is it a good way to promote your area to tourism-connected businesses, it also gives you a chance to meet other people in your field," she continued.

This networking, Gustin said, often leads to the securing of arrangements for meetings from other counties.

"Someone from another county in the state might call one day and say 'We saw your booth at the show, and we have a group that's looking for a place to hold its next conference.'"

Chamber of Commerce Director Olivia Roland said she isn't quite sure exactly what will occur at the show, since it is her first time to attend one, but added, "We're hoping to generate more travel, more traffic to our area."

Citizens group questions proposed zoning additions

BY TRACI BONNEY

Two proposed Bay St. Louis zoning amendments have prompted the creation of the Bay St. Louis Watchdog Committee, a recently formed information distribution group.

Franya Ethridge, a member of the committee, said the group "rejects Mayor Eddie Favre's contention that his proposed zoning change will give the city more control over dockside casinos. The fact is, the mayor's proposal would allow unregulated dockside casinos to operate on all beachfront property."

Ethridge said Wednesday afternoon that the first amendment, which would extend the city's zoning control into the Bay of St. Louis, is a good protective measure.

However, she stated that the second amendment (Section 604-1-24), which would permit dockside casinos on the property next to the Bay bridge and between State Street and the railroad tracks, is not good.

The proposed Section 604-1-24 would allow in Commercial Zone L, "piers, docks, marinas and all activities permitted and authorized by the Mississippi Gaming Control Act of 1990, together with all amendments and revisions thereof."

Ethridge maintained this amendment is too all-inclusive and leaves the door open for land-based operations if the state should ever change the Gaming Control Act of 1990 to include such facilities.

In addition, she said, the amendment could open the door for casino operations in all commercial and industrial zones, since current zoning ordinances for zones C-2, C-3, I-1 (light industrial) and I-2 (heavy industrial) permit all uses in previously stated sections.

In other words, the C-2 ordinance contains a phrase under "permitted uses" that states: "All uses permitted in C-1 District;" the C-3 zoning list includes "All uses permitted in C-2 District and multi-family," and so forth.

In addition to possibly allowing land-based casinos in a great portion of the city, Ethridge said the amendment acter and charm of Bay St. Louis are major assets worth preserving. Our common goal is to protect our residential, historical and beachfront areas;

"Our common goal is to protect our residential, historical and beachfront areas, while allowing for positive growth." —Ethridge

"removes Bay citizens' local control over land use in their city and places it in the hands of the legislature" by giving the state government an avenue — the Gaming Control Act — to regulate local land use.

"We believe the unique char-while allowing for positive growth.

"We want time for study, research and proper planning before any changes that will permanently impact the city

Jamey's

Answers the call of youth

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

The youth of Waveland have a new place where they can dance and socialize, and though they may not know it, they have two new friends, husband and wife, Derek and Jamey Breerwood.

The Breerwoods have taken the old Waveland Movie Theater building on Coleman Avenue and renovated it as a multi-purpose entertainment business.

Along with rentals for private parties and group dances, a primary function is for Jamey's to be "the Friday night hot spot" for the 20-and-under group.

Jamey's does not serve alcohol on the nights it is open to teenagers. No one can buy a drink, including any adults who may accompany a young person.

"There was no place for them to go," said Derek, "no place to gather. They were hanging out in Delchamps parking lot and at the Buccaneer State Park."

The Breerwoods have managed to avoid the "oldness" of adulthood, in that they remember their youth, and what it was like to suffer the pains and trials of the teen years.

The Breerwoods spoke candidly about how the youth of today has problems they never experienced. "Drugs were around," said Jamey, "but a select group experimented with them. Today, they are much more available."

"Promiscuous sex was always a concern. But today, it holds the threat of death."

"Abuse is everywhere. Maybe since the kids are more aware, they are more willing to speak about it."

Peer pressure is the strongest of influences stated were all upset with us, like we had betrayed them all. They said they would not come back.

"That night, before we left Jamey's, the young man's father came here to thank us for stopping his son, and the following week the boy came in and apologized."

"The kids all came back the following week."

Jamey added, "I'm pleased with how nice the kids have been."

She said, "I believe they (the

Efforts continue to find ammunition plant tenant

BY JANET MCQUEEN

Bay St. Louis resident Carroll Gordon is not unlike the eager job applicant who has distributed his resumes and must wait patiently for a response.

As president of Southern Development Association, his mission is finding a tenant for the Mississippi Army Ammunition Plant, which ceased production of grenades in early 1990.

Its workforce has dropped to approximately 400 from 1,700 in 1989. The loss of jobs plagued an already sagging local economy.

SDA has contacted hundreds of companies deemed suitable tenants for the 14-acre facility, with definite interest shown by 10 to date. But the "go-ahead" signal from the Army remains elusive.

Another $8 million contract to continue mothballing the plant was recently granted to Mason-Chamberlain Inc. The amount was part of the $45 million authorized appropriation by Congress in the 1990 budget to shut down the $600 million facility.

But, Gordon perseveres.

EFFORT BEGINS

His son-in-law, Congressman Gene Taylor, appointed some 45 people to his "Privatization Task Force" in February 1989, following the news of the plant's impending closure, to discuss possible uses of the facility.

The group, which included Coast businessmen and industrialists met several times to share ideas and formulate a game plan. Gordon was chosen to articulate their findings.

Following an initial "no" from Army officials at Rock Island in February, the task force did not give up.

In a March 1989 meeting in Washington with representatives from the Army Materiel Command, Office of Economic Adjustment and Corps of Engineers, Gordon presented his case for lease of the ammunition plant to private industry.

"Since the building was Army-built and owned, there was no precedent to follow," said Gordon, adding, "They liked our proposal."

SDA FORMED

Like the adage "Too many the Breerwoods, "To make it uncool to drink," added Derek, "is very difficult."

One Friday, since opening, the Breerwoods had their first experience with a teen drinking. Derek spoke of the incident.

"A young man came in, obviously drunk. We took his car keys away from him and gave them to one of his friends to hold."

"He got the keys back and went to his car, so we called the police."

Jamey interjected, "and we explained to the police that we did not want him arrested, we just wanted him to get home and not drive in that condition."

Derek continued, "The police took him to the station and called his parents."

"Meanwhile, the kids here, (teens) understood. We have to remain the adults."

The Breerwoods became involved in working with children when in the late 1970's their son joined a local ball team in Metairie, La.

Jamey explained, "Our neighbor had a handicapped son, the same age as our son, and the boy showed a desire to play ball."

"When we checked with the team coach we were told that they could not accept the responsibility of a handicapped child."

"We began to investigate what was available. After finding no organized sports group in which the boy could participate, we began our own team."

The Breerwoods received the Visitation was Monday evening at Winstead Funeral Home in Poplarville. Services were conducted Tuesday at the First United Methodist Church in Poplarville followed by burial in Poplarville Cemetery.

Helping others

Hancock Medical Center has received its first geriatric chair, via the generosity of George Polk of Bay St. Louis. Polk explained that he had purchased the chair for his mother, Mazie, prior to her death. "The hospital has been so nice to us," he reasoned, "that maybe someone here could use the chair." The chair can stretch flat like a bed, fold like a recliner, and is mobile, offering a variety of uses for an elderly person. (Echo staff photo by Jacqui Cochran)

Advances in early breast cancer treatment increase survival rate

One in ten Mississippi women will develop breast cancer at some point in her life, making breast cancer a disease that will affect many women you know.

According to the 1990 edition of the American Cancer Society's Cancer Facts and Figures, approximately 1,300 Mississippi women will be diagnosed with breast cancer in this year alone. Nationwide there will be 150,900 new cases.

Despite the high numbers of reported breast cancers, new advances in treatment have stabilized the mortality rate for this form of cancer.

Today, with early detection and treatment, the survival rate for localized breast cancer can reach 90 percent, and for breast cancer in situ (not invasive), the survival rate approaches 100 percent.

John C. Clay, M.D., president of the Mississippi Division Board of Directors says, "Early detection is the best weapon against cancer. We urge women to follow three steps to detect breast cancer at its earliest stages, when the opportunity for successful treatment is greatest."

The American Cancer Society's guidelines for early detection of breast cancer include monthly breast self-examination (BSE) for women 20 years old and older, as well as annual regular clinical breast examinations every three years for women age 20 to 40.

In addition, the society recommends mammography—a low dose x-ray of the breast—every year for asymptomatic women 50 years old and older, and a baseline mammogram for those 35 to 39 years old.

Women 40 to 49 old should have a mammogram every one to two years.

"Women should also be aware of visual signs of the disease, and of factors that put them particularly at risk," notes Dr. Clay.

Warning signals that women should be aware of include breast changes that persist, such as a lump, thickening, swelling, dimpling, skin irritation, distortion, retraction or scaliness of the nipple, nipple discharge, pain, or tenderness.

Risk factors for breast cancer include being over the age of 50, a personal or family history of breast cancer, never having had children, or first child birth after age 30.

Treatment for breast cancer varies, depending upon the stage of disease and the patient's preference. A mastec-tomy (surgical removal of the breast), lumpectomy (local removal of the tumor and a tumor-free margin of tissue), radiation therapy, chemotherapy, or hormone manipulation therapy may be required.

Often, two or more methods are used in combination. A number of clinical trials are available which test new drugs, or new combinations of existing drugs.

New techniques have made breast reconstruction possible after mastectomy, and the cosmetic results can be quite good.

Even though nine out of ten women will not develop breast cancer, it is a disease of which every woman should be aware.

Regular BSE, clinical examination by a trained practitioner, and mammograms as described, can go a long way in detecting cancer early and therefore, save lives.

It looks like marijuana, but it's not. "Farmweek" examines kenaf, a tall, fast-growing plant, at 7 p.m. Monday, Jan. 7 on Mississippi ETV.

Kenaf is being studied by scientists at Mississippi State University, who hope this native of Asia may one day be a major producer of fiber to make paper.

Also on this edition of "Farmweek," highlights of the annual Mississippi Soybean Day will be shown.

KILLING TIME

By Traci Bonney

How resolute are you?

Happy 1991!

I recently received my first letter from my brother Bob in Saudi Arabia. His spirits are pretty good, considering his current accommodations.

He was pleased to know I've been writing about him in my column, but he asked that I tell you a little about his achievements in the 2½ years he has served in the U.S. Army.

So, here goes, but I ask that you keep in mind as you read this a certain fictional car salesman by the name of Joe Isuzu.

My brother asked that I tell you all (or y'all, in proper English) that he is in Special Forces (he's lying), has 78 confirmed kills (he's never even wounded anyone), is a qualified Sniper (he doesn't even use a gun in his job) and has earned the Congressional Medal of Honor (he's still lying).

Are you impressed? He said you would be.

Now, on to the real subject of this week's column — New Year's resolutions.

Have you made any? What? You mean to tell me you've actually put yourself through all that rigamarole?

The last resolution I made was at least three years ago, and it's the only one I have kept faithfully.

I used to make resolutions to lose weight, keep my room clean, learn to control my temper, lay off the sweets, cut the soap opera viewing, not play so much Atari, write a certain number of pages each day, etc., etc., ad infinitum, ad nauseam.

I kept two of those — I stopped watching soap operas, and I gave the computer games a rest. The others — well, let's just say they did fill a couple of pages in my diaries, if nothing else.

Why do we do that to ourselves? Why do we make resolutions that last only until the next meal, party, fit of boredom, argument, crisis or installment of our favorite hour of immorality and stupidity?

Think about it for a minute: In a fit of constructiveness, you resolve to start, stop or change something, supposedly for your personal or professional improvement. Before Father

Time has even finished dragging the old year kicking and screaming out of the picture, you've already broken your resolution(s).

Now what? Now you sit around flogging yourself and feeling guilty.

Well, let me tell you which resolution I made that I have kept so faithfully. (You probably know already; after all, this is the punchline).

I resolved not to make any more resolutions.

I've kept it for three years, if not more. Not bad, huh?

So, don't ask me if I plan to make any resolutions this year. If I do, I'll break the only one I've ever kept for a reasonable length of time.

Jamey's

"Sugar Bowl" award several years later for their work. It is a prestigious award given by the Sugar Bowl football committee for an outstanding contribution by an organization throughout the year within the Greater New Orleans area.

The program, "We care" (for special children) is still going, according to the Breerwoods. It now has about 70 to 75 young adults. The sports programs are modified for the children and have developed into other areas, such as art.

The Breerwoods purchased some property in Waveland during this time and eventually chose to make Waveland their permanent home.

"I was educated by the Brothers of the Sacred Heart and wanted our son to be also," said Derek. "St. Stanislaus was one reason we moved here."

The Breerwoods became involved in St. Clare's CYO (Christian Youth Organization) and Jamey began to teach a Sunday school class.

"The kids would come to our home and talk," continued Jamey. "Actually, we just listened. They seem to have more problems than we did."

Meanwhile, Derek had purchased the building on Coleman, and the thought of a place where the kids could go on a weekend night began to fester in his mind. "We thought about it a long time," said Derek.

Jamey's has been open now almost two months.

At first the Breerwoods tried having an "over 21 (years old) night" on Saturdays. Only it didn't work out, according to Derek. Teens under 21 years old began hanging outside and the older ones would buy alcohol and bring it outside to them.

Fake identification was another problem the Breerwoods had not anticipated.

"We cut out Saturday nights," he said.

Extending the availability of Jamey's to the younger crowd on Saturdays was an option the Breerwoods considered, but Derek explained that he felt two nights would be too much for the younger group. "I don't want to burn them out. You have to make it special."

The Friday night crowd has grown, reported the Breerwoods. "Fridays we average about 150 teens, and we have not had one fight."

Jamey said, "We are so pleased with the kids on Friday and they really seem to enjoy their time here."

On Sunday evenings the Breerwoods participate in another youth activity. There is no charge and any youth is welcome.

Derek said, "The kids socialize, we later say a prayer and then it's open time. They say whatever they like. We sit on the outskirts."

Jamey said she didn't want the building to be named after her. "It sounded...so egotistical. I asked Derek to name it anything else."

Derek, smiling while his wife described her discomfort over the namesake, said, "I would say, O.K. and go upstairs and continue designing the sign."

Foster Care Association meets Saturday

The Mississippi Foster Care Association will hold their second meeting Saturday, January 5 from 10 a.m. until noon behind Our Lady of the Gulf Catholic Church. A purple ribbon will mark the meeting place. All interested persons are invited to attend.

CLUBS, AUXILIARIES

Blue Jeans Garden Club

Blue Jeans Garden Club Christmas luncheon and party Thursday, Dec. 13 was held at the Diamondhead Country Club. Dot Feaheny, president, completing her unprecedented third term in office as president, welcomed attending members and nine guests to the group's annual gala affair. Guests attending included Zelda Reuter, Yvonne Kirn, Josie Manca, Bridgette Manca, Joyce Eiserloh, Jo Ann Lagasse, Beth Witter, Muriel Jackson and Gloria Treadaway.

Following the president's welcoming address, luncheon chairman Mary Danna led the opening prayer and read an inspirational poem by B. J. Hoff titled "We Own Nothing But Today."

Eunice Foret was presented the coveted Silver Bowl for 1990 by Gladys Goodloe, awards chairman. In second place there was a tie between Beverly Coogan and Melba Felder. Third place winner was Joyce Hicks. All three ladies each received a potted poinsettia.

Serving on the awards committee with Goodloe were Betty Klein, who explained the awards system and complimented the members for their outstanding work throughout the past year, and Beulah Peterson and Margaret Heitzmann, who also did an excellent job as co-chairmen.

Administering the oath of office to newly elected officers for 1991 was installing officer Virginia Thomas, who presented each officer with a beautiful corsage. Officers for 1991 include Mayola Rotterham, president; Beulah Peterson, vice-president; Beverly Coogan, secretary and standing in for Cathleen Taconi, treasurer; Dot Feaheny.

The lovely table arrangements of poinsettia and holly were created by chairman Alice Brechtel and co-chairman Melba Felder and were given as door prizes. Winners were Virginia Thomas, Phil Lagasse, Melba Felder, Jennie Oris, Dot Feaheny and Margaret Heitzmann.

The first meeting of the New Year will be at the home of Cathleen Taconi, in Bay St. Louis, Jan. 17.

Waveland story hour titles told

"QUOTABLE QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

I wonder how many of those making New Year's resolutions have already broken them, and the year is only three days old.

In our Street Talk column last week, I really liked the response we received from one, who said he didn't make New Year's resolutions because he never kept any of them.

This year I am making only one resolution, and that is to push away from the table and continue to exercise, so I can lose a little weight.

I think losing weight is about the number one resolution I hear about as I talk to various folks.

I would like to congratulate those who make resolutions and are able to keep them.

Well it wasn't Christmas Day, but on Sunday afternoon, I saw two youngsters enjoying a swim off Waveland's sand beach.

It was rather warm this past Christmas compared to last year when two days before the New Year we were recovering from the two days of single digit temperatures.

Those kids seemed to really be enjoying themselves jumping in and out of the water.

I am sure the water must have been cold even with the temperature in the 70's.

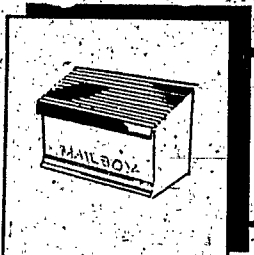

This is the time of year when the Hancock County Assessor/Tax Collector's office mails out Homestead Exemption forms to homeowners for the current year.

These forms have to be signed and returned to Edward Murtagh's office before April 1 in order for a person to claim Homestead Exemption.

All a homeowner has to do is sign the form and return it in the addressed envelope.

The only time it is necessary to go to the office in person is in cases where an exempt status has changed since the previous year, such as reaching age 65, Social Security disability, etc.

I would suggest that when the form arrives that homeowners should return it immediately before they forget. Receiving Homestead Exemption is a big savings on property taxes.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Survival of fittest is the way of the world

Dear Editor,

If the Immaculate Conception was a well intentioned ruse to promote peace on earth, it failed miserably. Peace on earth has alluded wise men from the Garden of Eden to Desert Shield.

Perhaps it is not to be. Call it greed or survival, it appears to be the essential ingredient to perpetuate not only man but all living creatures on earth.

The big fish have to eat the little fish to survive. Iraq swallowed little Kuwait, and now America is about to swallow Iraq.

No matter how wise we get, we can't find the answer. Maybe the creator intended it that way to assure the survival of the world.

There's a line in a popular song that says, "The answer, my friend, is blowing in the wind, the answer is blowing in the wind."

The wind is not known to have ever revealed any of its secrets.

THE PEOPLE'S BUSINESS

From the Mississippi Economic Council

Let's not forget what government is all about

No question about it—the priority issue of the 1991 legislative session has to be the state of Mississippi's economy.

Specifically, the issue is how—and whether—we can manage the state's budget. Local governments are facing similar fiscal crises, so the question is even larger: can we manage state and local governmental budgets?

How did we lose control anyway?

The answer may be surprisingly simple. Look at the growth of government in Mississippi.

The Mississippi Economic Council has just completed a study of the financial crisis in government.

This is what MEC found: In the past five years, 16,400 employees have been added to local and state government pay-rolls in Mississippi. Of that number, 6,000 have been added to state government; 10,400 have been added to local government payrolls.

Assuming an average of $20,000 per year compensation to these employees, that's a $328 million annual increase in the governmental payroll being borne by Mississippi taxpayers.

The time has come for Mississippi to return to the principle that reasons that government is created to provide limited, essential services to the citizenry. Government was not created to provide an endless stream of jobs.

The time has also come for Mississippi to get serious about the business of reducing the size of government—at state and local levels.

Let's not forget what government is all about.

IN CONGRESS

By Rep. Gene Taylor

Workers without jobs don't buy much

Recently, the Navy contracted to buy vessels that contained Italian diesel engines. As of today, at least 20 foreign vessels have been chartered by our Navy to carry American cargo and equipment to the Desert Shield Operation in the Middle East.

Last spring, during a hearing of the Seapower Subcommittee of the House Armed Services Committee, I told Secretary of the Navy Lawrence Garrett that while it did not bother me to use another country's technology, it bothers me when foreign-made engines or equipment are used in Navy ships.

In the 102nd Congress, I'll take whatever steps necessary to end our dependence on foreign equipment for our military. In doing this, America should restructure its Foreign Trade Zone Act so that it promotes U.S. exports instead of the importation of foreign parts.

The Foreign Trade Zone Improvement Act of 1934 allows for the creation of special "zones" within the United States that are considered outside the U.S. Customs territory to promote the export of American products. No duties are collected on goods as they enter the FTZs. If the finished goods are exported, the tariffs are never collected. If the finished goods enter U.S. Customs territory, a duty is then assessed.

The primary purpose of the FTZ Act of 1934 was to foster economic prosperity in America. But more and more American and foreign companies are ignoring the original intent of the legislation and using the foreign trade zones to avoid paying the full tariff on imported parts.

One troubling result of the FTZs is that imports have increased, while exports have declined. In the case of the automotive industry, imports increased from $200 million to approximately $75 billion from 1978 to 1988.

The majority of the automotive imports came from Japan, while the auto subzones exported only 9 percent of its products in 1988. (Japan, despite all of its imports to the United States, has refused to open up its financial markets to U.S. banks and securities companies.)

Automotive parts and components carry a higher duty than finished products. By permitting duty-free entry of parts, the FTZs allow manufacturers to get around paying the higher tariffs. This has resulted in a large savings for manufacturers of finished products at the expense of the U.S. parts and other manufacturers.

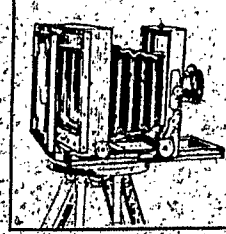

Almost every automotive assembly plant in the United States, including those owned by foreign companies, has been granted foreign Trade Zone status. Even the American companies are using foreign parts and almost no tariffs are being collected on the foreign parts.

Within the past year, the General Accounting Office and the House Government Operations Committee have recommended that Congress revise the FTZ laws to ensure free and fairer trade for American manufacturers. Studies done for the Twentieth Century Fund show that eliminating non-tariff barriers would add $35 billion to the U.S. trade deficit.

I support revising the FTZ law to include provisions that insure: that the proposed FTZ zone will result in higher domestic employment, that the activities carried out in the proposed zone do not have a detrimental effect on companies supplying the goods to the industry in the zone, that the activities in the proposed zone will have a positive effect on the United States balance of trade, that the operation of the proposed zone will not significantly harm competition in the domestic economy that produce similar goods.

As a member of the Armed Services and Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committees of the House of Representatives, I support the FTZ revisions for national security reasons and the American jobs that it would create. I want to see our military use American parts and components to produce military ships, weapons and machinery. Some foreign parts are necessary if America is to export its finished products. Our American tire industry has historically used foreign rubber with American steel to export a finished product. But Congress must not continue to support a policy that subsidizes foreign products.

Ending dependence on foreign parts would insure America's self-reliance in the event of war and would also insure high-paying, highly skilled jobs for Americans. Free traders argue that tariffs hurt consumers who have to pay more for goods, but workers without jobs don't buy much—they only window shop.

JANUARY 1, 1981

In a review of the previous year in office, Hancock County Sheriff Ronald Peterson said, "I am real satisfied with the way the sheriff's department has operated during 1980."

"I attribute our success to the people who work for me because they are all dedicated and well-qualified," he added. In looking into the future, Peterson emphasized the need for a new jail in Hancock County.

A Bureau of Marine Resources survey is underway in central Hancock County to aid the State of Mississippi in a land and mineral ownership dispute with local landowners. Outcome of the dispute will affect the location of all waterfront property lines in Mississippi and possibly throughout the United States.

Appointments of all county employees for 1966 was deferred by the board of supervisors at its first meeting of the year Monday because one member was in the hospital and another on his way to the doctor's. Supervisors wrapped up all other business in near-record time and recessed in mid-afternoon to meet again this Monday.

Locally-trained team wins Sugar Bowl game. Bay St. Louis was a deserted city on New Year's Day, with nearly everyone going into New Orleans to attend the Sugar Bowl Classic between Boston College and the University of Tennessee's powerful football teams. A large section of the seating capacity of the Tulane Stadium was taken up by the delegation from Bay St. Louis and a more lively and interested crowd was not present at the game. After having members of the Boston team and the personnel of Boston College here for two weeks of training, we felt as if they were some of our own folks and cheered and rooted continuously for Boston College. Editor's note: No score was given in the page 1 lead story. I guess everyone knew the score.

Carlos de Armas, who attended school here where he lived with his family, and prominently known in Bay St. Louis and the other Coast cities, especially for his activities in yachting, on last Monday afternoon was winner of the Race of Champions held from the Southern Yacht Club on Lake Pontchartrain in New Orleans and scored a thrilling victory in the club's annual mid-winter Sugar Bowl Regatta.

President Wilson is not the first president to find Pass Christian an ideal place for a vacation. Away back in the summer of 1849 old Zachary Taylor, of Mexican war fame, came to Shieldsboro, in these days known as Bay St. Louis, then a fashionable resort. He remained for a few weeks or ten days, and moved across to the Pass, equally famed as a resort, where he spent a couple of weeks. The coming of Zachary Taylor was in striking contrast to the arrival of President Wilson. Taylor came on a puffing steamboat from New Orleans, wearing a big brass buttoned uniform and followed by a retinue of soldiers and slaves. Military pomp was everywhere displayed, and in the county are several old residents, and the sons and daughters of pioneers who can tell interesting stories of the open-eyed wonder which the Gulf Coast folks greeted and welcomed the famous general and the first president whose only profession was that of a soldier.

We understand some years ago a road to the Kiln was surveyed, but for some reason was never completed—nor commenced for that matter. This, in our opinion, was a mistake, as the Kiln ought certainly be connected with the Bay by a shorter route than the present one. The building of the route would be equally beneficial to both points. The present route to the Kiln is about twenty-one miles, most of which lies through thickets and over high hills, making it unspeakably disagreeable to the traveling public. A direct road to that section of the country would decrease the distance by half and would increase the traffic about ninety percent. The Kiln and vicinity which includes many small settlements is one of the richest sections of the county, but owing to the bad road now existing, the bulk of its trade goes to other points. This road that we now suggest and contemplated some years ago by the county, should be given the fullest consideration.

cooks spoil the soup," the task force included too many members to effectively accomplish its end, according to Gordon.

In late March, the Southern Development Association was formed. Its members include Dan Mortimer of Gulf Coast Fabrication, Chuck Ramsey of Bay Technical Associates, Joe Ethridge of Struthers Industries, Ernest Burdette of Triton Systems, Chuck Ueltsechey of Mississippi Power, Fred Levert of Seeman Composites, Hank Renken of Ter Chemicals, Hancock County Port and Harbor executive director Harold (Buz) Olsen, Harrison County Development Commission director Michael Olivier, Pearl River County Development Association director Sherman Gaspard and Mayor of Picayune, Woody Spiers.

SDA operating management includes Gordon, president, and Sen. Vic Frankiewicz, vice-president.

Funding was allocated by Mississippi Power and the Gulf Coast Economic Council and office space was donated by the Port and Harbor Commission.

A "crude brochure" was produced (a perfected one is in the making) describing the facility.

and potential tenants received introductory letters from Taylor.

In June, invitations were extended to interested companies to tour the facility. From that meeting, 10 government contractors expressed interest. "Six of those are substantial contractors," said Gordon.

GRANTS AVAILABLE

The Department of Defense and the Office of Economic Adjustment offer grants to communities affected by the economic loss from the closing of a defense related facility, such as the ammunition plant.

But, obtaining a grant has been an exercise in frustration, said Gordon, whose sixth proposal is presently being considered. Previous drafts have been returned, requesting additional information, the proverbial "red tape." The original request was modified to seek two separate grants.

An EDA grant would fund a staff for Southern Development Association, who would handle the marketing of the facility, while an OEA grant would fund studies to determine economic impact.

"The result of these studies could lead to substantial investments by the agencies OEA represents," said Olsen.

Meanwhile, Gordon continues to pursue a tenant, mailing out information and following up with telephone calls.

"It has been a tough fight," he said. "Not that we have had opposition, but at least now everybody is marching in the same direction."

Zoning

are made," she concluded.

Mayor Edward Favre continued to maintain Wednesday that the two amendments will work together for the city's protection, but also acknowledged that the state might amend the Gaming Control Act at some future date to include land-based operations.

Favre said, "If the state did that—and that's a big if—yes, it would open the city up for land-based operations."

"We don't anticipate it happening, but since there is a slight possibility that it might, the Planning and Zoning Committee intends at tonight's meeting to propose an amendment to the amendment that will restrict permitted operations to dockside or water-based facilities."

FirstHancock Bank's New And Affordable
Savings Plan That Pays
You MORE...Higher Interest
For The Small Saver

Now there's a savings plan that will let you save as little as $25.00 a month (or, as much as you like) and still receive 6% interest compounded daily. The amount you save is limited only by your ability to fulfill your commitment to yourself.

Safe &amp; Secure

Hancock Bank continues to be listed among the Nation's 50 strongest large banks by VERIBANC, Inc. Not only is your money earning top dollar for a plan of this type, but it is in one of the safest banks in the country.

Convenient

The "Pay Yourself First" savings plan is also one of the most PAINLESS means of saving due to its Automatic Electronic Fund Transfer feature which lets you transfer as little as $25.00 weekly, bi-weekly or monthly.

This means no passbook to keep up with, no coupon book, no deposit tickets and no waiting in line. In fact, the only way you can make a deposit is electronically from one account to another.

It's like paying your light bill with a pre-authorized draft directly from your checking account. And, you never see it, so you won't miss it.

Floating Interest Rate

The plan also has a built-in safeguard against inflation. If interest rates go up, your rate will increase. Even if rates go down you will still earn a premium rate.

18 Month Maturity

The plan only requires an 18 month commitment. After that you have ten days during which you may withdraw your funds. If we don't hear from you within that period, the account will automatically renew itself at the prevailing interest rate.

If you have an emergency and need to make a withdrawal, you will be subject to an interest penalty similar to other timed savings plans.

Easy To Open

All you need is a personal account in your name at Hancock Bank or any financial institution. And, there is no opening deposit required.

To open your "Pay Yourself First" account, just stop by your nearest branch and fill out an authorization card. Or, give us a phone call. It only takes a few minutes.

COOKING UP A STORM

By Katy McGuire Caire

Now that the extra, special feasting of the holidays is over, I find myself hungry for plain and hearty "comfort foods" such as soups and stews; how about you?

So, this morning, the house is heartily fragrant with the aroma of beef and wine and garlic and such, as a hearty Beef Bourguignonne simmers on the stove. Don't be awed by the fancy title of the dish; it's just the French cook's name for robust beef stew, slowly, slowly simmered in red wine!

Thrifty housewives of the French countryside have long known the secret of tenderizing the less tender but tasty cuts of meat with wine to break down the fibers and make the meat as fork-tender as the more expensive cuts.

The flavor of this dish comes from the hours of simmering in a heavy skillet or pot (I prefer my cast iron Dutch oven for this) with an occasional glance into the pot. Here's:

BEEF BOURGUIGNONNE
3 lbs. round or chuck, cut into chunks or bit-size pieces

Sugar for sprinkling meat
Butter and bacon drippings as needed

12 or so small, peeled white onions (or other onions cut into chunks)

1 coarsely chopped carrot
Black pepper, salt to your taste

Pinch of thyme, same of marjoram

Dash of Worcestershire sauce

2 Tblsp. flour
Bay leaf

1 minced garlic clove

2 or 3 cloves, optional

2 cups Burgundy wine

1 cup beef broth or bouillon

1 cup sliced mushrooms

First, sprinkle the beef cubes with sugar before browning, for richer color and flavor, then brown in a combination of butter and bacon drippings (or oil, if you prefer). Add the seasonings and flour, and mix and stir all together.

Pour the wine over all, along with the broth or bouillon. Cover and simmer over low heat for at least three hours, more if needed. Add the mushrooms and continue to simmer until the meat is fork-tender. I like to serve this stew with rice and a green salad, with lots of hot and crusty French bread (or garlic bread) for mopping up the delicious dark ruby red sauce.

It's also tasty over broad noodles, or you might serve the meat in a casserole or other serving dish, with the sauce on the side, and with small whole new potatoes sauteed in butter as an accompaniment.

Food trends emerge with emphasis on healthy eating

What will make tomorrow's products? Food trends can start anywhere, from well schooled creativity of chefs to the time pressed imaginations of homemakers.

Sometimes technology lends a hand, providing new ingredients that makes a product or trend possible.

Following the recent trend toward healthy eating, the key word in ingredient technology is "replacement," as in sugar, fat and salt.

Sugar replacement continues as new artificial sweeteners receive Food and Drug Administration approval for new and expanded uses.

Aspartame, introduced in the early 1980s, continues to be promoted in face of its U.S. patent expiration in 1992.

Researchers have already made breakthroughs in the search for the next generation of sweeteners.

sweeten individual products.

With continued interest in saturated fat, cholesterol, taste and carcinogenicity, the battle rages on among champions of various fats and oils.

More uses for milkfat, a commodity in great supply, are on the horizon. Research is aimed at restructuring this complex fat to provide "fractions" with a variety of nutritional benefits.

Milkfats flavor, wide range of fatty acids, and known ingredient properties make it a natural for restructuring into tailored ingredients for the baking, dairy, and confectionery industries.

Simplesse and other fat substitutes are expected to be used in many more products. These fats will be in great demand and represent a lucrative and expanding market for the dairy industry.

But whether "light" dairy products will reduce the incidence of obesity or chronic diseases remains to be seen. At any rate, these pseudo fats do reduce the incidence of guilt in the indulgent consumers.

Meanwhile, the National Sunflower Association is promoting the results of a recent Gallup survey that indicates U.S. consumers view sunflower oil as the healthiest, out of a group including corn, soybean, canola and cottonseed.

The U.S. Council for Coconut Research strikes back against all the negative publicity tropical oils have received. The Council issues a statement that claims "though coconut oil is high in saturates, most of its fatty acids are of the short and medium chain variety, which are metabolized differently than long-chain saturates like those in other so-called saturated fats." Time will tell whether coconut oil makes a comeback.

No oil is good oil. Stabilizers also have staked a claim in the oil battlefield, because they are used in such formulation as salad dressing, frozen desserts, and sauces to replace oil's mouth-feel and body. Look for expanded uses and no oil product formulations.

Frying oils and methods are under further study too. Indications from recent studies are that the deep frying process itself is safe, but stiffer regulatory standards may be in the works.

Taste problems associated with salt substitutes have been cited. One company has developed a low-salt product that consists of salt, potassium chloride, reduced lactose, whey, and hydrolyzed vegetable proteins.

It's designed for use in low-salt processed foods. Look for more research in salt substitutes ranging from salty replacements to seasoning blends.

DRIPPING MEAT

The liquid in packages of beef and other meats in supermarkets soon may not leak out so easily.

Food scientists have found a way to keep the "drippings"—sometimes containing essential nutrients—from seeping out of the meat by using a thin edible coating, report M. Farouk and colleagues at Michigan State University in a recent issue of the Journal of Food Science.

The coating or "film," made of a protein called collagen, allowed less liquid to escape from beef round steak in a week than from untreated vacuum-packaged meats, the study said.

The edible films—already used to coat specialty smoked meats—helped prevent spoilage or nutrient loss in refrigerated, fresh and frozen steaks, the report said.

FRUIT RIPENESS

Food scientists now can use the light emitted by fruits to determine ripeness and maturity, report W. R. Forbus and colleagues of the USDA-ARS Agricultural Research Center in Athens, Georgia, in a recent issue of the Journal of Food Science.

To help determine maturity of fruits, such as peaches, along distribution channels from farm to table, researchers check to see how much light is emitted after brief illumination of the fruit.

The light comes from the color—or "chlorophyll"—containing cells in the fruit which change as the fruit ripens, the study said.

This technique may help decrease spoilage in peaches and other fruits including oranges, bananas, papaya and cantaloupe.

Awaiting FDA approval for the use of Aspartame in confections and bakery foods, the company has perfected the first nutra-sweetened cookies and muffins, baked with encapsulated Aspartame that doesn't lose its sweetness during baking.

Both European and Japanese firms are trying to find new sweeteners or improve existing products. Competition in the world of sweeteners will be very category specific as special sweeteners are designed to

The Pass Christian VFW Post 5931 will begin its 1991 season tonight with two dart teams.

The "Vets" in the Bronze "D" Division and "Stars & Stripes" in the Silver League West Division.

The "Vets" will play "Duffy's II" at Duffy's on the River in Gulfport.

"Stars & Stripes" will play "Top Guns" from T.O.'s Lounge in Gulfport, at the VFW in Pass Christian. Games will begin for both teams at 7:30 p.m.

Coast Rifle and Pistol Club held its December Open with NSSA registered competition.

Winners for the Sunday, Dec. 16 event were: Greer Higgins, 12-gauge, Class AA. Jim Guernsey, 20-gauge, Class C. Jim Shoemaker, 20-gauge, Class D. Stephanie Myers, 20-gauge, Lady Champion.

The Coast Rifle and Pistol Club will hold its next event on January 19.

For more information call 875-3858.

The Magnus Eklund Junior Tennis Camp at Diamondhead completed a three day clinic from December 27-29. The camp included juniors from beginners to tournament players.

Emphasis was put on stroke production. Each student was video filmed and the tape was watched by students and teachers to help in technique correction.

The jump rope was often used to improve the footwork of the players.

Eklund reported that some of the juniors are now ready to obtain a State Junior ranking in 1991.

Magnus Eklund will offer Adult and Junior Clinics at Diamondhead for the week of February 4.

Each Clinic will offer beginner, intermediate and advanced levels and will last for six weeks of one and a half hour sessions.

Cost for adults is $40 and for juniors is $35.

Bassin' with the pros

Bass movements can strand anglers

Sometimes bass anglers can get stranded, even though they still have plenty of water under the boat. It happens when the school of bass they've been fishing moves.

Changing weather conditions appear to be the most common cause for making bass change addresses, but rising or falling water levels will also move fish.

"I have seen bass move between 200' and 300' yards overnight," explains Evinrude Pro Staff angler Guy Eaker. "It's hard to imagine a school of fish moving that far that quickly, but I've seen it happen several times."

One of the most dramatic movements Eaker remembers occurred during a national bass tournament on Georgia's Lake Lanier several years ago. During practice he'd been fishing the upper Chattahoochee River, catching a lot of bass in shallow pockets along the river.

Then the weather changed abruptly from clear, balmy skies to rain and plunging temperatures. When Eaker went back to the river pockets he never caught another fish.

"Remember fishing for about two hours without a strike," the Evinrude pro explains, "and that told me the bass were gone."

"I turned the boat around and gradually worked my way out to deeper river channel points, and I finally found the bass again. They were more than 200 yards from those pockets."

Sudden cold fronts tend to move shallow bass deeper, says Eaker. Generally, that movement will take the fish to the first breakline or heavy cover in deeper water.

"If you've been catching bass in a shallow flat, just turn the boat around and head straight to deeper water," he explains.

"Watch your depthfinder and look for the first deeper ditch, river channel, hump, or deep point, because that's usually where the bass will be."

When bass change locations into deeper water, it generally means anglers must also change fishing techniques. Eaker recommends switching to a heavier 5/8 or 3/4 ounce spinnerbait and slow-rolling it near the bottom and over any channel drops or ditches.

"You may have to fish 15 or 18 feet deep," he says, "but you can still catch those bass. The two main things to remember are that they will be deeper and they will want a lure moving more slowly."

While sudden cold often moves bass deep, several days of warm, spring-like weather during the winter may move bass shallow.

"The key is finding baitfish," explains Eaker. "They'll move shallow first when the water begins warming, and the bass will follow them."

"I look for them in the creeks where the water usually warms faster than in the open lake. Watch your temperature gauge, because some creeks may be three or four degrees warmer than others, and this is where the fish will be most active."

To keep your outboard motor running smoothly all season, OMC recommends the use of OMC Engine Tuner. Available in a 13-ounce spray can, OMC Engine Tuner removes gum and varnish build-up and cleans excessive carbon deposits from rings, pistons and ports when sprayed through the carburetor of a running motor. It's available at most Johnson and Evinrude dealers.

Pass Christian names citizen of year

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

Miss Adele Bielenberg, a native of Pass Christian and lifelong resident, was named "Citizen of the Year" for her work in education and continued service to the community by the Pass Christian Chamber of Commerce and Rotary Club.

Miss Bielenberg, who lives on Scenic Drive, is not one to be found at home too often.

If she is not at one of her many club activities, she is out visiting shut-ins, counseling cancer patients or performing in the service of her church as a eucharistic minister.

"I do volunteer work when I'm called on, or when I have a spare moment," she explained. "When I can't get out, I send cards to the sick and bereaved."

Having battled the big "O" (cancer) herself 33 years ago, she is often called to come and speak with present-day victims.

"It helps to speak with someone who has been through it. It helps to know what to expect."

Miss Bielenberg, one of two girls born to the former Katie Baehr of New Orleans and Edward Charles Bielenberg of Pass Christian, remembers a time when career avenues were limited to women.

"Teaching was the easiest thing to get into at the time," she said.

A graduate of Pass Christian High School, Gulf Park College, Mississippi State Teachers College and the University of Southern Mississippi, she began her graduate studies at Tulane University in New Orleans and in 1960 received her master's degree in education from USM.

She has a Class A certificate in elementary education and administration.

She said her first teaching position was in Pineville. "It was a little wooden building with a porch all around, and goats would come up and stick their heads in the windows."

Following 41 years of work as teacher and principal with the Pass Christian Elementary School System, Miss Bielenberg retired. St. Paul Catholic School asked that Miss Bielenberg return to work as principal when attempts to fill the position were unsuccessful.

She accepted the challenge and returned to the education field for the next six years.

Though she found the administrative end of education to be challenging, she preferred the direct contact of teaching. "As a teacher, you can be closer to the children."

Miss Bielenberg was Junior Red Cross chairman of West Harrison County for 10 years and served as safety chairman of the Pass Christian Elementary PTA (Parent-Teacher Association) for several years.

She organized the first

Hotel stood where this house is built," said Miss Bielenberg of her home for the past 50 years. "The fence outside is over 100 years old."

The wrought iron fence is all that remains today, of the popular Pass Christian establishment.

Miss Bielenberg reported that all the homes along the block have the same fence because the hotel owners encouraged the other property owners to remain consistent in appearance.

She is community service committee chairman and a member of the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP) and registered Girl Scout Troop in Pass Christian and was its leader for 14 years.

"I knew the girls needed something in town to keep them busy," she said. "I called general headquarters and obtained all the information to organize the troop. We went on hobo hikes and even had a float in the Mardi Gras parade."

"Pass Christian had one of the first Mardi Gras parades on the Coast," added Miss Bielenberg with pride.

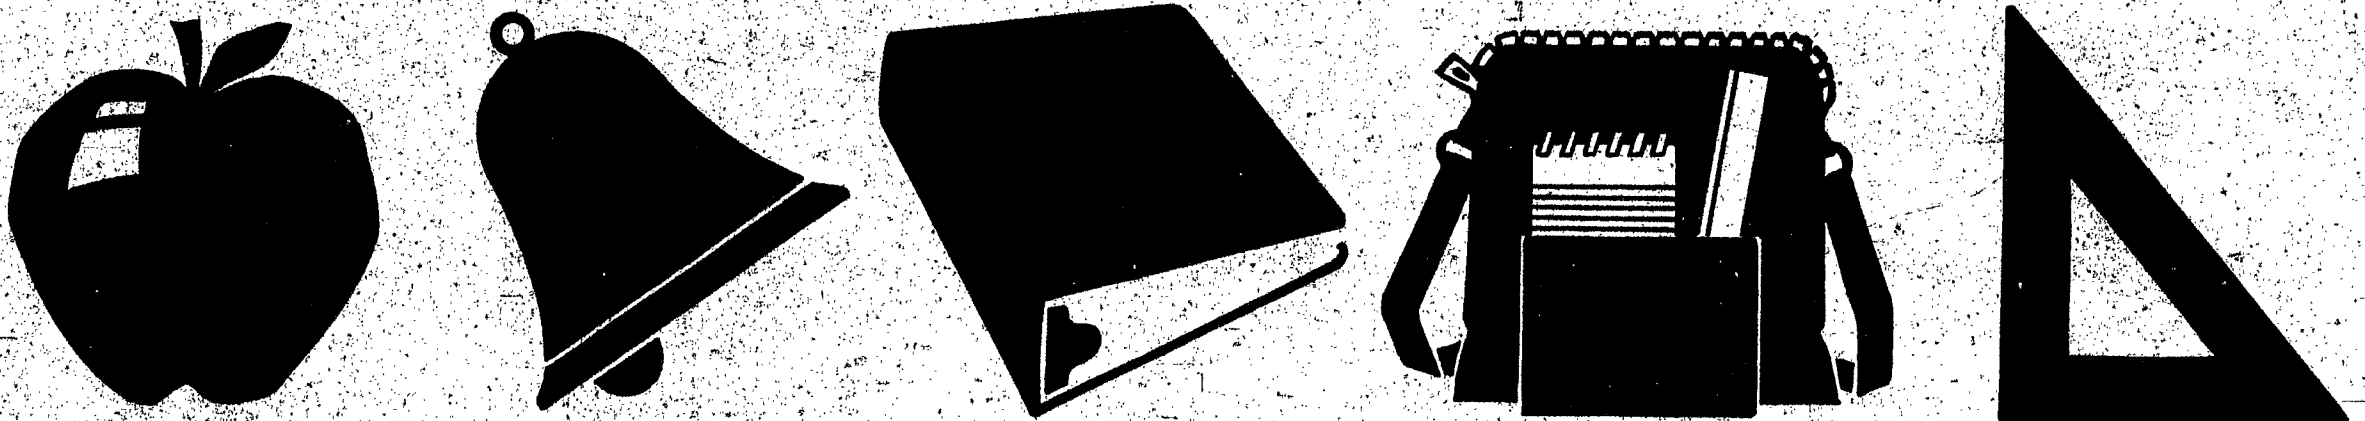

As an active member of various civic and social organizations, Miss Bielenberg is presently preparing a volume of historical pictures for the Pass Christian Historical Society.

"The old Mexican Gulf

membership and registrar chairman for the Pass Christian Garden Club. She is the chaplain for Delta Kappa Gamma, Alpha Upsilon Chapter, an honorary teachers' society, and belongs to the Pass Christian Yacht Club.

From all of Miss Bielenberg's activities, she confesses to finding "most satisfaction from my church work as eucharistic minister for St. Paul's."

Miss Bielenberg, saying she was honored to receive the citizen of the year award, slyly winked and added, "but what took them so long?"

In capable hands

Gulfview runs smoothly under watchful eye of Myrna Bourgeois

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

Myrna Bourgeois, assistant principal of Gulfview Elementary School, is successfully managing the job of two people these days.

On November 19, principal Donald North was called to active duty with the Bay St. Louis detachment of Mississippi's 135th National Guard Company.

Bourgeois, feeling the absence of North, said, "Gulfview not only lost a good principal, but I lost a good friend." "We shared all the duties," said Bourgeois.

"She explained they functioned as a team, and though North was 'temporarily' gone, she had no other alternative but to continue as if he were present."

The Hancock County School Board assigned assistant superintendent Eddie Danzey on November 19 to fill in for North during his absence, in lieu of replacing the principal at that time.

Danzey reported since that first week of North's absence, he has not had to return to Gulfview because "I don't see any problem."

"The people there are very professional," he said.

"After his third day," said Bourgeois, "Mr. Danzey said, 'Myrna, you are doing a fine job. You don't need me down here.'"

"Besides," she added, "we have an excellent staff. They are caring and dedicated. As a group, whatever needs to be done, we all pitch in and work together. Eventually, it all gets done."

enough about the Gulfview staff.

She credits staff unification to a change in discipline policy within the past five years. "Discipline was out of hand here."

"Consistency is important, and once a decision is made, stay with it," said Bourgeois of the need for rules and regulations.

She stated it is easier for people to perform their jobs when a

Blood donors

Bay High students Kris Barlow, above, and Randy Sekinger are shown donating blood at a recent blood drive sponsored by the Bay High National Honor Society in the school's gym foyer. To donate blood, a student must be 17 years old, weigh at least 110 pounds and be in good health. According to Lisa Oleson, Red Cross representative for the Gulf Coast region, Hancock County orders 1,535 pints of blood a year and receives approximately 638 pints.

Third graders across state take part in smoke-free program

Third grade classes across the state have been signing up for the 'Smoke-Free Class of 2000' since November. If your third grader's class has not yet signed up, contact your teacher. The 'Smoke-Free Class of 2000' is a 12-year anti-smoking project that is sponsored by the Mississippi Lung Association, the American Heart Association, the American Cancer Society, the American Cancer Society, Mississippi Division. Now in its third year, Smoke-Free Class of 2000 activities will take place Friday, Jan. 25. Education kits will be provided on a first-come, first-served basis to participating teachers. If your third grader's class has not signed up and you are interested in this project, please contact Pam Dalton of the American Cancer Society at 1-800-ACS-2345. The Smoke-Free Class of 2000 is supported by Blue Cross & Blue Shield of Mississippi.

Great Books will discuss 'Crito'

The Great Books groups of Hancock County will discuss Plato's Crito in January. The Diamondhead group will meet Monday, Jan. 7 in the Diamondhead Community Center at 7 p.m. The Bay St. Louis group meets at the City-County Public Library on Hwy. 90 Thursday, Jan. 10 at 7 p.m. Participants may pick up order forms for the next 15 selections (second series) at the City-County Library (467-5282). More information may be obtained by calling Gigi Raymond at 466-4655. New participants are invited to begin this new series.

Foster Care Association meets Saturday

The Mississippi Foster Care Association will hold their second meeting Saturday, January 5 from 10 a.m. until noon behind Our Lady of the Gulf Catholic Church. A purple ribbon will mark the meeting place. All interested persons are invited to attend.

MILITARY MENTIONS

SSGT SNEYMR. Air Force Staff Sgt. Paul A. Sneymer Jr., a flight engineer specialist, has arrived for duty at Barksdale Air Force Base, La. He is the son of Paul A. and Janet G. Sneymer of Bay St. Louis. His wife, Kellie, is the daughter of Butch Cummings of Boston.

Slidell Little Theatre offers murder mystery

While most people were thinking of Christmas shopping, tree trimming and holiday gatherings, director Tracy Nugent and cast of Murder in Mind have been rehearsing most evenings at Slidell Little Theatre. From day of tryouts to closing night actors give complete dedication to the play for about nine to ten weeks. During normal times life can become hectic; during the Christmas holidays life can become frantic! Overcoming these obstacles the cast of Murder in Mind, Katie Buescher, Tim Dun, Claude Songy, Vicki Darnell, Robert Hetrick, J. D. Roberts and Mohamud Deleao have been bringing the characters to life in this suspenseful murder mystery by Terence Feely. Mary, the heroine, insists that the people, who say they are her husband, sister and cousin, are imposters even though they seem to know many intimate details of her life. Then we have the elusive George, and where is George? Murder in Mind's plot has many twists and turns and a surprising, unexpected ending. Tracy is assisted by Don Redman. Murder in Mind runs from Jan. 18 through Feb. 2. The performances are Fridays and Saturdays at 8 p.m. For reservations call 641-0324.

Statewide youth leadership competitions set at USM

The University of Southern Mississippi Center for Gifted Studies is accepting applications for its 1991 Statewide Leadership Competitions. Mississippi students in grades 7-12 are eligible to participate in the competitions and awards ceremony, which are set for April 13 on the Hattiesburg campus. The application deadline is Feb. 1, 1991. The competitions are designed to develop leadership skills and style, build self-confidence and allow Mississippi's young leaders to meet, develop friendships and share ideas in a fun setting. Awards will be given in all categories: leadership plans; public speaking; essays; and graphic, photographic and videographic art. For information booklets, write Dr. Frances A. Karnes, Leadership Competitions, Southern Station Box 8207, Hattiesburg, MS 39406-8207.

K of C donation

Grand Knight Bob Hubbard presents Father James Kelly of St. Augustine Seminary with a check for $500 toward the purchase of a stained glass window in the newly renovated chapel. The window will be in memory of all deceased members of the Pere le Duc Council No. 1522.

BIRTHS

JEREMIAH ASA HOWELL. Mr. and Mrs. Keith Howell of Bay St. Louis announce the birth of a son, Jeremiah Ash, December 11, 1990 at 9:32 a.m. at Hancock Medical Center in Bay St. Louis. He weighed 6 pounds, 10 ounces. Mrs. Howell is the former Julie Leigh Jastram. Maternal grandparents are Marshall and Pat Jastram of Waveland. Paternal grandparents are M. J. and Norma Howell of Perdido, Ala.

Pass Christian announces school trustee election

A trustee election will be held in the Pass Christian Public School District in the outside territory which is outside the corporate or city limits on Saturday, March 2, 1991, for one trustee for a full term.

The Board of Trustees of the Pass Christian Public School District has designated the DeLisle Elementary School as the voting place for all electors who vote in the trustee election. The polls shall be opened at 2 p.m. and closed at 5 p.m. for the first ballot. In the event a run-off is necessary, such run-off shall be held two weeks thereafter.

To be eligible to vote in this election, a person must be present at the time and place of holding the election, a qualified elector, and be a bona fide resident of the added territory of the school district which is outside the corporate city limits.

In addition, any person who shall desire to be a candidate for the office of trustee must qualify in the following manner in order to be allowed to be considered for election:

At least 40 days before the election, a candidate offering for election must file with the office of the Superintendent of the Pass Christian Public School District a petition to run signed by not less than 25 qualified electors who are bona fide residents of the area represented by the office which the candidate seeks for a full term, and an affidavit by the candidate stating the candidate's qualifications.

The petition shall contain an affidavit certifying that all signatures are the personal signatures of each person whose name appears on the petition and that each person is a qualified elector.

MILITARY MENTIONS

SGT SWANIER

Air Force Sgt. Cullen J. Swanier has been named noncommissioned officer of the quarter. The selection was based on the individual's exemplary duty performance, job knowledge, leadership qualities, significant self-improvement and other accomplishments.

He is a telephone and data circuitry equipment specialist at Kelly Air Force Base, Texas.

Swanier is the son of Anna M. Swanier of Pass Christian.

The sergeant is a 1978 graduate of Pass Christian High School.

SSGT JONES

Staff Sgt. Feltise M. Jones Jr. has been deployed to the Middle East with American military forces participating in Operation Desert Shield.

Operation Desert Shield is the largest deployment of U.S. military forces since Vietnam. The operation is in response to Iraq's invasion of Kuwait and threat to Saudi Arabia.

He is the son of Feltise M. Jones Sr. of Bay St. Louis, and Agatha C. Jones of Pass Christian.

The soldier is a unit supply specialist at Fort Hood, Texas.

SEAMAN-LOFTIN

Navy Seaman Recruit Curtis D. Loftin, son of Vesta M. Loftin of 10210 Avenue B, Bay St. Louis, MS, has completed recruit training at Recruit Training Command, Orlando, Fla.

During Loftin's eight-week training cycle, he studied general military subjects designed to prepare him for further academic and on-the-job training in one of the Navy's 85 basic fields.

His studies included seamanship, close order drill, Naval history and first aid. Personnel who complete this course of instruction are eligible for three hours of college credit in physical education and hygiene.

He is a 1990 of Bay Senior High School.

Saturday Gifted Studies program starts Jan. 19

The University of Southern Mississippi Center for Gifted Studies has re-opened applications for its 1991 Saturday Gifted Studies Program.

The series, offered on seven Saturday mornings from Jan. 19 through March 2, will provide intellectually gifted students in grades K-12 with a variety of courses designed to enhance their abilities. Participants' parents also may take advantage of seminars designed especially for them, at no additional cost.

To be eligible, students must have an IQ score of at least 120 on an individually administered intelligence test (the WISC-R or Stanford-Binet) or have participated in a state-approved program for intellectually gifted students.

Students may obtain applications for the program through their schools or by contacting the USM Center for Gifted Studies; Dr. Frances A. Karnes, director; Southern Station Box 8207, Hattiesburg, MS 39406-8207; telephone (601) 266-5236.

COMMUNITY SERVICES

Adult Literacy Education

Tutoring sessions for adults who want to learn to read and write are available through the Hancock County Library System. The program is open free of charge to any adult aged 16 and above who wants to improve reading skills to a grade five level.

Each student meets one-on-one with a certified tutor trained in the use of the Laubach Adult Literacy method. Student/tutor units meet at a time and learning center convenient to both. Learning centers for literacy are currently located in Bay St. Louis, Kiln, Waveland, Diamondhead, Dedeaux, Clermont Harbor and Pearlington.

Call the Bay St. Louis Library, 467-5282, for information. Persons who wish to teach adults to read as volunteer literacy tutors are also encouraged to call.

Blood Pressure

Retired Senior Volunteer Program sponsors free blood pressure testing Tuesdays, 9:30-11:30 a.m., American Legion Post No. 77, Waveland. Wednesdays, 10:30-11:30 a.m., RSVP office, Senior Citizens Center, Old Spanish Trail, Bay St. Louis.

Hancock Medical Center Women's Auxiliary (Pink Ladies) conducts free blood pressure testing at the hospital, 10-11:30 a.m. Tuesdays.

Legal Line

Volunteer attorneys answer legal questions from the general public from 6 to 7 p.m., first Wednesdays at 1-374-4160. The service is sponsored by Harrison County Young Lawyers, South Mississippi Planning and Development District Area Agency on Aging and South Mississippi Legal Services Corporation.

Money Management

The Consumer Money Management Center serves the public by providing free financial consultations as well as informational literature and seminars for employers, educational institutions and civic and professional groups.

Information and assistance from the center relates to various aspects of personal money management including budgeting, credit repayment, insurance, and investments.

The service is sponsored by Mississippi State University and Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service. To set up an appointment call Hancock County Extension Office, 467-5456.

Senior Citizens Center

Located in the Valena C. Jones Bldg. at 301 Old Spanish Trail in Bay St. Louis, the center serves Hancock County citizens 60 plus years of age.

Under the Hancock County Human Resource Agency, the center provides classes in ceramics, macramé, art, quilting, counted cross stitch, silk flowers, Christmas ornaments, framing, wood working and various other crafts. A morning snack is provided with donations from various clubs and businesses.

The center has a contract to provide 30 home delivered meals a day to those seniors who cannot provide for themselves, and 35 meals for those who have a need for a hot well-balanced meal daily in the cafeteria at the center.

Transportation is provided through a contract with Coast Area Transportation for most seniors in the county to bring them into the center, or to take them to the grocery, doctor, etc.

The contract with Methodist Senior Services provides two homemakers for about two hours a week to homebound, needy seniors to do light house-keeping or errands for them.

For more information, call the center at 467-9292 from 7:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

American Cancer Society

Assistance to victims of cancer is available through local chapters of the American Cancer Society.

Necessary items for patients, such as dressings, ostomy and sickroom supplies are available to those in need. Equipment which may be loaned to patients includes wheelchairs and hospital beds.

Assistance is available for transportation to qualifying hospitals.

Several rehabilitation programs are offered, including "Reach To Recovery," in which volunteers who have had mastectomies visit new breast cancer patients (with approval of physician) to assist in emotional, physical and psychological rehabilitation.

Support programs are also available to ostomy and laryngectomy patients.

American Cancer Society service request forms are available by contacting the Gulfport office at 896-7024.

St. Vincent Thrift Store

Waveland Conference, St. Vincent de Paul Society operates a thrift store, Waveland Civic Center, Coleman Avenue, 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Tuesdays, Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays. Proceeds benefit needy regardless of race or religion. 467-0703. Interviews for information, referral and assistance services are conducted Wednesdays between 1-3 p.m.

Bay-Waveland Crisis Pregnancy Center

The Bay-Waveland Crisis Pregnancy Center offers free counseling, pregnancy tests, maternity and baby clothes.

Located on Highway 90, next to the Unique Shoppe in Waveland, the center offers a 24-hour hotline, 467-3444.

Jobs for Mississippi Graduates

Seniors at Hancock High School who plan to go directly to work after graduation may enroll in the Jobs for Mississippi Graduates Program (JMG), for assistance in locating quality jobs after graduation.

The program, which is one of six in the state, seeks to enhance employability skills.

For additional information, contact Mark France at Hancock High School at 467-2251.

AIDS helpline comes to Mississippi

The Delta Region AIDS Education and Training Center at LSU Medical Center, in conjunction with the University of Mississippi Medical Center, is providing a new service for health care professionals in Mississippi.

Called the AIDS Helpline, it is a toll-free number for physicians, nurses, dentists, social workers, psychologists, infection control specialists, and health administrators to call to get the most up-to-date information available about HIV/AIDS.

In addition to educational information, surveillance data, crisis numbers, information about experimental treatments, and customized literature searches, the service will provide clinical consultations on a call-back basis.

Only a little more than a decade ago, AIDS was a little known disease. As such, it fell into the purview of the researchers and academic infectious diseases specialists. As the number of HIV/AIDS cases has soared, the need for current, accurate information has increased proportionally.

The AIDS Helpline was designed as a resource for all health care professionals to help all who are now treating HIV/AIDS patients. It is operated in conjunction with the AIDS Regional Education and Training Centers for Texas and Oklahoma.

The Delta Region AIDS Education and Training Center at LSU Medical Center is one of 15 regional AIDS training programs whose goals are to educate and motivate health care providers to counsel, diagnose, treat, and manage individuals with HIV infection and to assist in the prevention of high risk behaviors which may lead to infection.

The Delta Region AIDS Education and Training Center serves Mississippi, Louisiana and Arkansas. The Delta ETC Resource Center director in Mississippi is Dr. Stanley Chapman, professor of medicine and director of the Division of Infectious Disease at the University of Mississippi Medical Center, (601) 984-5560.

Cuevas receives credentials

Janie Lou Cuevas has been credentialed by the American Medical Record Association as an accredited medical records technician. Cuevas completed a two-year independent study program and 36 college semester hours at Pearl River Community College. She then passed a national credentialing examination.

Accreditation requires continuing education in the areas of health information systems, statistics, quality assurance and coding.

Cuevas is employed by Crosby Memorial Hospital in Picayune.

A PROVEN SOLUTION TO KIDNEY STONE PROBLEMS!

More than two million people have had kidney stones removed without a scratch.

Lithotripsy is a proven, cost-effective and much less painful alternative to surgical removal of kidney stones, utilizing a special technique to disintegrate the stones.

Slidell Memorial Hospital is proud to announce the availability of a state-of-the-art "bath-less" Lithotripter for management of kidney stones. A series of quick, short waves reduce the stones to sand-sized particles that easily pass through the patient's urine.

The advantages include lower cost, shorter recovery time and better patient tolerance. The "bath-less" technique has the added advantage of an environment that maintains your privacy, as you are not required to be completely unclothed at the time of the procedure. Because it is so efficient, treatment usually requires less than one hour and can be performed on an outpatient basis, allowing you to resume everyday activities shortly after discharge.

If you're already suffering from kidney stones, why suffer a painful recovery from surgery when there is a safe, effective non-surgical alternative? For more information about this exciting procedure, please call 636-0044.

er for teachers. She said Gulfview recently received a McIntosh Computer through a program sponsored by Jitney-Jungle in which grocery receipts are collected and the school receives credit for a percentage of the receipt total.

"There is a list of items, and when you have enough in receipts you can pick out the item of your choice."

"The parents of the students are to thank for obtaining the new computer. They (computers) do cut down on the time it takes to document information on each child."

Bourgeois left Hancock North Central and the gifted program to accept her present position at Gulfview.

During these past years at Gulfview, she sees changes to have occurred "from the inside," including discipline, the teaching of all skills, the organization and enthusiasm of students and staff.

"To make the outside beautiful, you must first work from the inside."

Bourgeois would like to see the development of a "good arts and music program."

State regulations prohibit athletic programs in the elementary level, said Bourgeois.

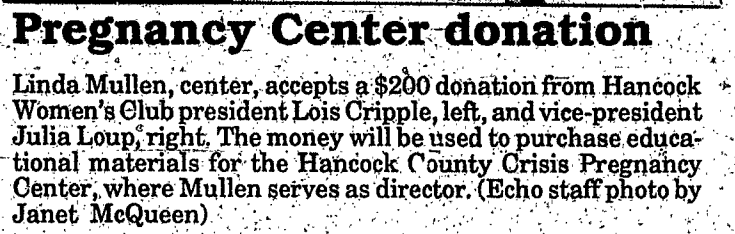

"We need current textbooks," she said of present needs, "and more media systems, such as overhead film strips, record players and tape players, so the teachers can expand their presentations."

Bourgeois may be singing the praises for her fellow workers, but her fellow workers express genuine fondness in working with Bourgeois.

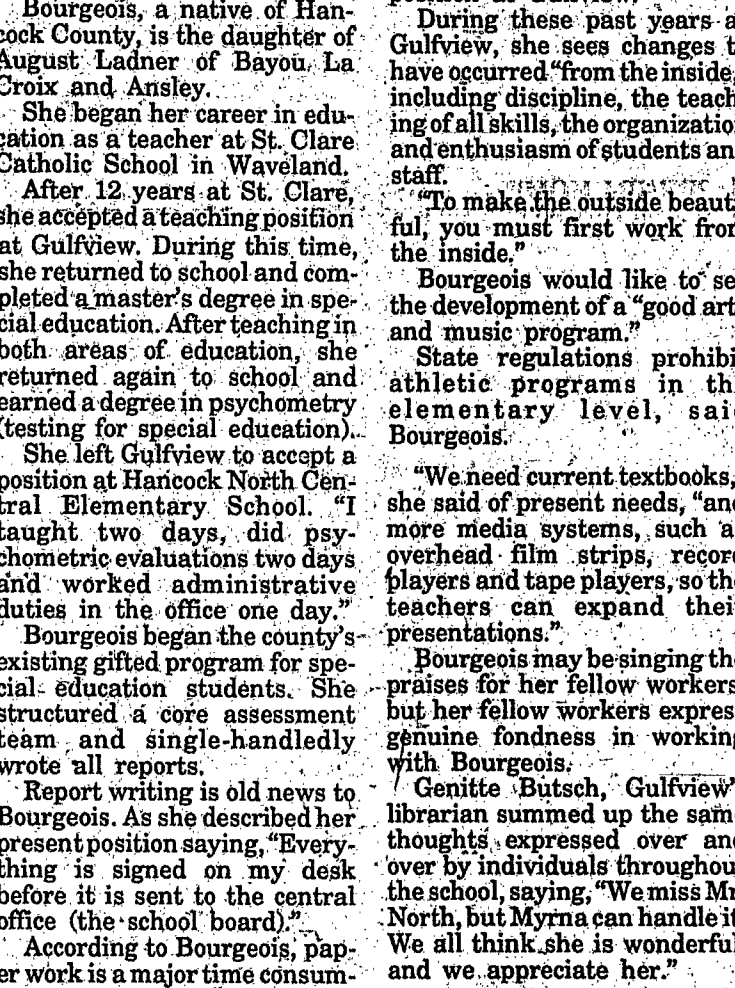

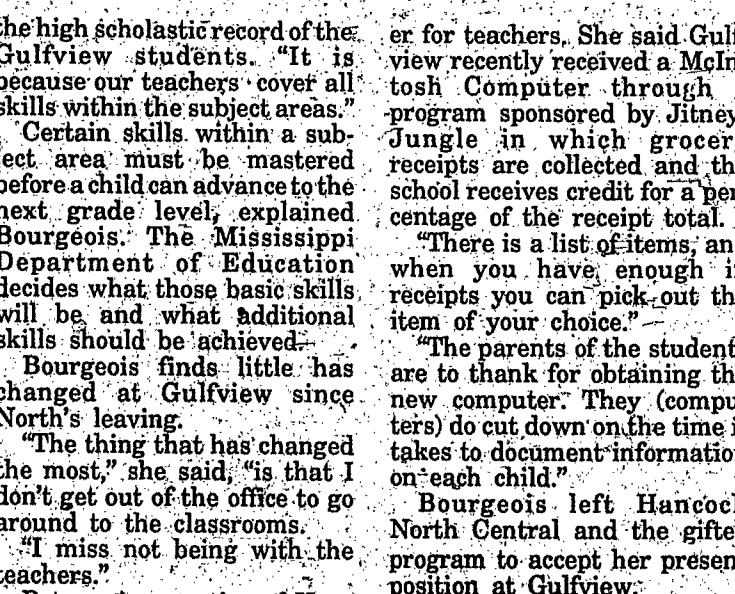

Genitte Butsch, Gulfview's librarian summed up the same thoughts, expressed over and over by individuals throughout the school, saying, "We miss Mr. North, but Myrna can handle it. We all think she is wonderful, and we appreciate her."

Walking Track

Continuing their efforts to beautify the Hancock County Walking Track, several members of the Bay-Waveland Garden Club planted beds of crepe myrtles recently. Cindy Lowe, above, spreads compost in one of the beds tilled by her husband. The crepe myrtles were donated to the Hancock County Parks and Recreation Department by Kmart.
